CHIUMENKOW RECAPTURED, WU PEI-FU TELLS PEKING

Arrangements Concluded With S.M.R.; Details Unknown

TO LAND TROOPS

Fleet At Chinwangtao Ships Soldiery To Antung

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 19.—Marshal Wu Pei-fu this morning telegraphed to the Government announcing that Chiumenkow had been completely recaptured.

Reuter's special correspondent at Chinwangtao, in a message dated October 12, stated that the Government war vessels concentrated at Chinwangtao were under instructions to proceed to Antung. It was reported that Marshal Wu had made satisfactory arrangements with the South Manchurian Railway, the nature of which was not disclosed.

Telegraphing on October 13, the correspondent stated that Fengtien aeroplanes dropped 11 bombs on Chinwangtao that morning. No serious damage was done. The first bomb destroyed the railway station water tank, the second wounded a boy, while the rest did not explode. Marshal Wu went out early in the day with his full staff to direct operations. It was expected in Chinwangtao that a general advance would be made on all fronts in three or four days.

Peking, Oct. 19.—The absence of foreign official reports from Shanhaikwan indicates a lull in the recent heavy fighting.

A cold snap has set in which renders the lot of the soldiers at the front additionally hard, but reinforcements continue to be sent to the North, and important movements on both sides continue, which hold out the prospect that a final decision will be reached before the Winter.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 19.—Since yesterday morning, heavy fighting has continued at all fronts inside the Great Wall to the north of Shanhaikwan. In the sector of Chiaoshanssu, the Fengtien troops are not only holding Erhlangmiao but have as well occupied Kotanling and two or three minor points to the north of Shanhaikwan. The Headquarters of the Chihli troops declares that the war-situation in the Shihmensai sector is favorable to the Chihli troops.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 19.—Marshal Wu Pei-fu, Generalissimo of the Government troops, is alleged to have declared that if he should be defeated he would as soon die on the battle-field as disgrace himself by retreating. While he was stimulating his troops in the Erhlangmiao yesterday, two of his body-guards were wounded by stray-bullets from the Fengtien troops.

Today up to 6 p.m., Marshal Wu continued to give orders to the Chihli troops from his temporary headquarters established in a wood near Changkutien to the south of Shihmensai. The Chihli forces in the above sector are now making every effort to regain Erhlangmiao. To that end, Marshal Wu has specially despatched the 10th Regiment of the 3rd Division, his picked troops, to redouble the force of the Chihli troops, which are at present attempting a fierce attack upon the Fengtien forces.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chinwangtao, Oct. 19.—The situation on the Shanhaikwan front today was quiet.

The navy continued the bombardment of the Fengtien lines beyond Shanhaikwan.

Marshal Wu Pei-fu's forces have been further strengthened by the arrival of troops by rail from Tongku.

Fengtien aeroplanes dropped eight bombs on Chinwangtao this morning. Four fell near the

ATTEMPT IS MADE TO FREE 'LITTLE' HSU FROM POLICE

Consuls Will Consider Petition Filed By His Attorney

Two attempts to secure the temporary freedom of Hsu Shu-teng, Little Hsu, now held prisoner in his home, 34 Nanyang Road, pending deportation to another country, were made by the law firm of Faison and Heath yesterday.

The first attempt failed. The second will be considered within a few days.

The International Mixed Court refused to consider the writ of habeas corpus, seeking to have Hsu brought before the court where the commissioner of police would be forced to show cause for the detention of the militarist.

A. J. Martin, senior British Assessor, and Magistrate Loh said the International Court had no jurisdiction over the police of the International Settlement.

Following this failure, Faison and Heath filed another writ with the Shanghai Court of Consuls, through Com. G. Nob de Rossi, consul general for Italy, and senior consul in Shanghai.

The consuls will meet shortly to consider the petition.

Selected British engineering firms will shortly be invited to tender for a contract of £500,000 for temporary irrigation works.

Canton, Oct. 18.—It is reported that the troops commanded by General Hung Chao-lin have captured the Humen fort and that Tsengcheng is being attacked by General Lin Hu's troops. The situation in the district of the East River is thus gradually assuming a serious aspect.

Besides, various disquieting rumors still are being freely circulated in Canton and the public mind is agitated to the extreme, with the consequence that thousands of refugees are making a stampede for Hongkong by every mail as well as for Shameen, thus presenting an unprecedented confusion and disorder all over the city.

The Eastern News Agency's representative yesterday, with great difficulty, and after encountering halts called by sentries of the Government troops, made a round of inspection of the central part of the city, where exhaustive looting had taken place and where flames had swept almost all the houses there. There is literally no house that remains intact. The pitiful condition is beyond description. The actual extent of danger is not

Disposal Of Chekiang Men Delays His Return To Hangchow, Says Sun

Could Finish Off Defeated Troops In Six Hours, He Asserts, But Would Resort To 'Mild' Method For Peace

BY D. J. LEWIS

Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, Inspector General of Fukien and Chekiang Provinces, who has been in Shanghai since last Friday noon informed a representative of THE CHINA PRESS yesterday that he expects to return to Hangchow in about three days and that the only thing which is delaying him in Shanghai has been the matter of disposing of the defeated Chekiang troops now in this vicinity. In General Sun's opinion this problem of dealing with the defeated Chekiang troops could be settled in about six hours by using extreme methods, but owing to his desire not to interfere more than necessary with conditions here, it has been necessary to use "mild" methods. Without mentioning any names General Sun indicated that there has been unnecessary interference and delay in this matter and that if he had had a free hand the menace of several thousand armed Chekiang troops massed about the Shanghai North Railway station would have been cleaned up before this.

The announcement made a few days ago that General Bei Bao San of Chihli who led the Kiangsu forces in cooperation with General Sun in the fighting around Sungkiang, has been appointed Defence Commissioner at Shanghai, is premature. General Bei has only been acting in this position, and according to General Sun's information, General Bei and his soldiers soon will be dispatched to actively participate in the fighting in the North against Fengtien.

When General Sun was asked as to the time of General Chi Hsieh-yuan's arrival in Shanghai, General Sun stated that he had no information on this subject. According to General Sun there are several outstanding questions which he would like to discuss with General Chi personally, one of them being the question of the Shanghai Arsenal, since owing to the fact that General Chi has not sent any responsible man to take charge General Sun has found it necessary to appoint a member of his own staff, Mr. Yang Pan-fong to act as director in charge of the Arsenal temporarily.

Since the Arsenal is located in Kiangsu territory, nautrally General Sun stated that he had nothing to say regarding its status, but General Sun personally is of the opinion that it should be removed from Shanghai to some interior city. As Inspector General of Chekiang with his headquart-

Half Of China Does Not Know War, Says Minister Schurman

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Sept. 15.—The present war in China was described to President Coolidge today by Mr. Jacob Gould Schurman, United States Minister to China, as "a bubble on the surface of an otherwise peaceful nation."

More than half of the population of China, he estimated, had no knowledge or interest in the war.

MARSHAL CHI DUE TODAY AFTER CHEKIANG TROOPS DEPART FOR KIANGWAN

Crisis Due To Alleged Attempt By Chinese Chamber Of Commerce Officers To Abduct Chekiang Soldier Delegates Finally Smoothed Over By Demobilization Agreement

BY TALBOT PATRICK

After a week-end in which the Chekiang troops at the Shanghai North station reached the most dangerous mood of their stay there, they smilingly left last night for demobilization at Kiangwan and opened the way for a triumphal entry of Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan reported scheduled for this morning.

What the Chekiang men believed was an attempt to abduct their delegates by representatives of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and of General Sun Chaung-fung in an attempt of officers of the business organization to find favor with the new Chekiang governor was the cause of the wrath of the soldiers.

As result, machine guns were placed for a time pointing across the Settlement boundary and field guns emplaced among heaped-up rice bags at either end of the station platforms and the situation was even considered ripe for an agitator to suggest that the Settlement be fired upon with field guns in order that advantage might be taken of the resulting disorder.

The trouble developed through a Sunday afternoon visit to the Chamber of delegates from the troops who expected to receive $17,000 to cover the supply of food for the soldiers for the next five days, according to the report made by them. The delegates were named Li Moh An, Wong Vung Dzau, Kau Something-or-other and Zee Ang Sung. They were received by Yu Ya-ching, head of the chamber, they said.

They presented receipts for the money they expected to receive and were told, they say, that the money would be paid through General Sun Chaung-fung, out of $100,000 the chamber had turned over to him.

They replied the receipts were made out to the chamber and that they wanted to get their money from it in accordance with the past arrangements, not from Sun. Yu replied, they declare, that he couldn't get all the money then, but that he would get enough for two days. He left then, leaving them with Fong Jau-pao and Zee Ko-sung, general secretary of the chamber, and saying that another member of the chamber's special finance committee would attend to them.

The latter took the five receipts and went into another room. After half an hour's absence they say he returned with a statement that he could give the only enough for one day. Thinking something better than nothing, the delegates say they told him to bring on the money, whereupon he refused to have anything more to do with the affair.

At this stage, they relate, Wang Ping-yien, chairman of the Chapel council, entered with a telephoned announcement from Yu Ya-ching that only enough money for one day's food could be paid. Two men arrived in an automobile immediately afterwards, asked the delegates for their cards, and then ordered two of them, Li and Wong, to come with them to General Sun. Li refused and was thereupon ordered out of the building, he said.

Outside, he declared, he was forced into the motor car by the two men aided by Zee and the car started from Honan Road across the Szechuen Road bridge. When Li asked where he was going, he was told by Zee to keep still, he said. Whereupon, deciding that he was being abducted, he began shouting for help. His cries were heard when a traffic jam at Szechuen and Peking Roads stopped the car and a Sikh and Chinese constable took the whole party to the Central station.

There Zee charged Li with an attempt to obtain money by false pretences.

Li was held several hours. Meanwhile, it is said, two of the other delegates went into another car and were taken and held until they were released on orders they believed to come from General Bei Pao-san. The other two went back to the troops and stirred them up with a report of as much of the differences as they knew.

After a time Yu turned up to attempt to give bond for the release of Li, but had already been forestalled by a police investigation resulting from the complaints of the free delegates. Incidentally there had rallied to the moral, and if necessary, financial support of Li the two prominent figures of K. K. Chang of the Kiangsu provincial assembly and Mang-yen

LEGAL BATTLE ON TO RECOVER DOCK'S SPOILS

Application To Restrain Concern From Parting With Goods Granted

Now that the military battles about Shanghai are over, the legal battles in the foreign and mixed courts here apparently are about to begin, if we are to judge from an action [illegible] in the United States Court to [illegible] yesterday for the recovery of some of the materials removed from the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works while that Chinese Government establishment was under the control of General Ho Feng-lin, former defense commissioner of Shanghai.

The first development in connection with the alleged looting of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works, during the present trouble, came up in the United States Court for China yesterday when an action was commenced on behalf of the Dock authorities to recover some of the goods alleged to have been removed from the works. It is stated that from October 10 to 12 no less than a million and a half taels worth of goods were removed, and the authorities are now endeavoring to trace that which has been lodged in the International Settlement with a view to its recovery.

Yesterday morning the firm of Messrs. Teesdale, Newman and Godfrey filed a complaint on behalf of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works in which the following particulars were alleged:

The plaintiffs, a department of the Chinese Board of Navy, carrying on business of shipbuilders at Lunghua, near Shanghai, suing the Commercial Express and Storage Co. alleging that on the 10th and 12th days of October the defendants removed from the premises of the plaintiff

TALBOT PATRICK QUITS SHANGHAI FOR WORLD TOUR

Mr. Talbot Patrick, whose news stories and pictures from the war fronts with their frequent scoops have been of keen interest to most of our readers, is represented in today's issue by his last Shanghai story for some time to come.

He leaves today for Hongkong in continuation of a trip around the world which brought him here last May and back again just before the Kiangsu-Chekiang hostilities after a two-months' trip to the head of steamer navigation up the Yangtsze. After a short stop in Hongkong with probable trips to Macao and Canton, which we hope will bring us interesting dispatches on the situtaion in the latter city, Mr. Patrick will continue on the Philippine Islands, where he expects to stay some months.

Yau of the Chinese Telegraph Administration.

Yesterday, Yu was busy as a bee putting about in attempts to have Settlement authorities withdraw the charge placed against Li by the secretary of Yu's organisation and to persuade them to forget all about the whole affair. In the afternoon he was visited at the chamber by General Bei Pao-san and Mr. Wen Shih-tsen, newly appointed commissioner of foreign affairs, and an announcement followed that General Bei would in the future attend to the feeding of troops in Chapei, while General Sun would be responsible for those in Nantao.

However, the Chekiang men were pacified by final agreements on paying them off and giving options of joining various sections of the national army, and yesterday and last night they all cleared out from the North station and were expected to be away from Markham Road Junction as well by early this morning. The station was cleaned up as fast as they cleared off the platforms in preparation for the expected arrival of Marshal Chi.

An attempt was made yesterday to re-establish the railway communication between here and Nanking with one locomotive. Although all the torn tracks have been repaired, many sections of the line are still reported to be mined. It is expected that the passenger service will be resumed in three days.

Mr. Wu Mong-lan, newly appointed director of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, arrived in Shanghai yesterday and called on several important members of the staff. Mr. Wu is a Chihli man, a graduate of the Peiyang Naval College and was Chief of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway Ferry Service.

The second of the two instalments of $200,000 for disbandment was paid over to Marshal Sun Chuan-fang by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and the Nantao Chamber yesterday. The receipts were executed by both Marshal Sun and Mr. Yen Chia-chi, Finance Commissioner of Kiangsu. The latter also notified the Yung Hang Bank, which holds the security for the advance in the form of $1,100,000 deposits for the Chapei Electric and Water Works, for the receipt of the money.

According to Commissioner Yen, Kiangsu is about to issue a provincial loan of $5,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the province. It will be redeemed in four years and eight months and bearing interest at 10 percent.

Accompanied by Mr. S. K. Chen, Chief Secretary of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, General Sun Chuan-fang called on several members of the Consular Body on Sunday.

Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan has telegraphically approved the appointment by General Chang Yung-ming, the Hupeh commander, of Li Shou-tse as Magistrate of the Shanghai City in place of Shen Pao-chang.

The re-enlisted troops of the fourth division under General Hsia Chan-lin will be despatched to Sungkiang, Kashing and Fengking today. A number of junks on the Huangpu were commandeered yesterday for the purpose of transportation.

An inventory was taken of the airplane hangar at Lunghua on Sunday. Twenty-eight planes were found. The important parts of most of the machines have been removed.

Brigadier-General Lu Shao-ting, in command of the third brigade of the second division of Fukien forces, arrived in Shanghai on Sunday and held a conference with General Sun Chuan-fang.

Mr. Yang Fang-tang, secretary to General Sun Chuan-fang, assumed his new office as director of the Kiangnan Arsenal on Sunday, succeeding Hsia Pang-ching.

The Civil Governor of Nanking has appointed Yin Fu-yi, director of the Nantao Public Works Department and Yang En-pei, director of the Chapei Public Works Department, succeeding Yao Mo-lien and Hsu Jen-tsing.

Peking, Oct. 20.—The Chinese Government replying to the Japanese Memorandum of October 15, today presented notes simultaneously to the Japanese Minister at Peking and the Foreign Office Tokio.

The preamble states that the memorandum has been duly noted. In reply it may be pointed out that the present military operations have been occasioned by a rebellion against the authority of the Chinese Government on the part of General Lu Yung-hsiang, Marshal Chang Tso-lin and their accomplices.

For the purpose of clearing up the sources of the disturbances and for promoting the unification of the country, the Chinese Government has been compelled to resort to punitive measures, which, under the circumstances, are only fitting and proper.

As the rebels are abhorred by the Chinese people, they should not of course be looked upon in the same light as the Government forces.

The Chinese Government attaches great importance to the declaration of the Japanese Government to the effect that it will always maintain an attitude of strict non-interference.

As to the security of the lives and property of the nationals of friendly Powers in China, and the rights and interests they are entitled to enjoy under treaties, the Chinese Government will spare no efforts in affording them due respect and protection.

This has been several times affirmed, and the Government forces have been instructed to that effect by mandates forbidding them to molest or jeopardise such nationals of friendly Powers in places through which they may happen to pass.

The Chinese Government moreover has been aware of the large number of Japanese nationals and the considerable amount of Japanese commercial interests in China. Pursuant to its established purpose of promoting neighborly friendliness with Japan, it is more desirous during the present period of military operations of extending to them every possible protection from injury and loss, irrespective of their location either in districts through which Government forces pass or other parts of China.

As regards peace and order in places adjacent to the present areas of military operations, the Chinese Government and the military authorities in the field consider them of the greatest importance, and will do the utmost for their maintenance and preservation. At the same time it will be in this respect helpful to no small extent if the Japanese Government will see its way to exhort Japanese residents in the aforesaid areas to conduct themselves with circumspection and restraint.

Peking, Oct. 15.—Mr. Liu Chien, who is to succeed Mr. Wang Kung-ting as Taoyin of Shanghai, has lately been chief of the Department of Administrative Affairs in Kiangsu, and the right-hand man of Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuen. HERR STRESEMANN HOPES TO RETAIN ZEPPELIN PLANT

Says All States On League's Council Favor German Admission

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 19.—In a speech at Frankfurt-on-Main, the Foreign Minister, Herr Stresemann, referring to the flight of the zeppelin ZR3, expressed the hope that Germany would be permitted to continue the construction of airships without restriction.

Herr Stresemann declared that all the States represented on the Council of the League of Nations had pronounced in favor of Germany having a permanent seat on the Council, but a point still to be discussed was that Germany could not take part in wars or a blockade under the orders of the League so long as she was the only disarmed State amid neighbors armed to the teeth.

BIG BLAZE BREAKS OUT AT BUBBLING WELL YESTERDAY

Two Buildings Gutted And Five Damaged; Girl's Narrow Escape

There was a sharp outbreak of fire at 61 Avenue Haig, near the junction of Rubbling Well Road, early yesterday morning, and spread rapidly to a mat-shed and other one-storey places adjoining. So quickly did the fire go up that although the call was received by telephone the Bubbling Well Division, not far distant, found five or six houses already in flames when they arrived. This may be accounted for by the quantity of kerosine, paints, fireworks and bamboo matting stored in the various shops, and there was grave danger of the fire getting to other shops, and an assistance call was sent for Sinza Division.

When the first machine arrived from Bubbling Well it was reported that a woman was caught in one of the burning houses. Sub-Officer Price, on going round to the back, found a girl in a rather extraordinary position. She had, in trying to get out of the door quickly, caught her hair in a hook on a bamboo pole and could not disentangle herself. Although the house was well alight, the Sub-Officer, although slipping and injuring his knee, got the girl disentangled, and brought her back to safety. The fire was soon stopped and extinguished, but houses Nos. 61 and 63 were destroyed, Nos. 57, 59, 65, and 67 more or less damaged, and the mat-shed at the back partly destroyed.

There was a big glare over Robison Road early this morning, but the origin of this was well across the Creek, probably Chenju. The fire was of considerable magnitude, and at daylight this morning was still burning.

The Fire Brigade received a number of calls during the week end here but with the exception of the above none of them were of a serious nature.

FOREIGN FIRMS ON NANKING ROAD ARE BURGLARIZED

Landau & Son, Ezra & Co. And "New Bookstore" Are Victims

There foreign firms at 3 Nanking Road were broken into and robbed Sunday night, cash and other property to a value of over $1,500 being taken. Entrance was gained to the building by cutting a window, and Messrs. A. Landau and Son's, Messrs. Frederick Ezra and Company, and "The New Bookstore" were all victimised.

In Messrs. Landau's offices the compradore's safe was pried open and looted, and most of its contents strewn over the floor. The robbers took only cash from the safe, disregarding a number of checks, some of them payable to "Cash." Tools and electric flashlights were found on the floor with the papers. Beside the cash stolen, suits, raincoats, and blankets were taken, to a total value of about $1,000.

As with Landau's offices, entrance to Messrs. Frederick Ezra and Co. was gained by cutting away a window, but in this case a hand was inserted and the Yale lock turned, while a padlock on the door was torn away. The robbers got away with twenty boxes of chocolates, three bottles of brandy, some cigarette cases, a $5 gold piece, and a number of articles. The loss amounted to two or three hundred dollars. The desk in Mr. Ezra's office was forced open, but the burglars failed to open the safe.

The marauders got into the bookstore by continuing through Mr. Ezra's place to the Nanking Road entrance, which they opened, entering the bookstore from this side. From this shop they took a number of rouble notes and some valvable stones, of a total value of $250 or $300.

This is said to be the fifth burglary in these buildings this year, Ezra's having been visited last spring and the bookstore about three months ago, while Nestle's have also been visited twice.

"The Barber Of Seville" and 'Lucia Di Lammermoor'

The Italian Opera Company gave that wonderfully gay and musical production, "The Barber of Seville," at last Sunday's matinee performance. Signor Scamuzzi, as Figaro, filled the part splendidly, and the parts of Bartolo, Rosina, the music-teacher, and the Count were all played well and sung excellently.

From the remarkably first act, with Figaro's song of himself and the ensuing duet between him and the Count, to the final scene with the entire company assembled, there is not a moment in this opera which is not full of life, vigor and melody. To combine humor and music as they are here combined is the work of a supreme genius, and there is certainly no opera which can compare with "The Barber of Seville" in this respect. Also there are few operas which demand more from its principal characters in both vocal and histrionic powers, and the Italian Opera Company has succeeded in filling every part with remarkable aptitude.

Sunday's performance of this opera being a matinee, the house was not as full as this splendid opera deserved. It is to be hoped that the opera company will favor Shanghai with one more presentation of this wonderful piece before leaving us.

"LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR"

"Lucia," with its marvelous sextette which has made it known to millions who have but the haziest idea of the opera itself, was the offering last night, then the beauty of this splendid composition was brought out to the full. Signorina Surinach was an excellent Lucia, and Signor Gilita (Edgar), Signor Rigardi (Lord of Lammermoor), Signor Baroncini (Lord Arthur Bucklaw) all rendered their parts well. Signor Milochi as the chaplain was particularly effective, with his powerful bass and fine acting.

An appreciative audience showed the keenest enjoyment of the many beautiful numbers in the opera.

Members of the American Women's Club are reminded that the Social Department together with the Membership Committee and the Music Department have arranged a tea and reception to new members which will be held at the Club Rooms from 4 to 7 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Beatrice Plummer, a well known singer and composer, will give a half hour's program. Mrs. Plummer has studied many years abroad both in Germany and Paris and her beautiful voice and charming personality have made her popular wherever she has chosen to sing. She has something unique to present—in fact, her work is really original in text and music and presented by herself in a beautiful manner. She writes both the words and the music of her songs and the themes are dainty in the extreme. Following Mrs. Plummer's program, Miss A. Viola Smith who was a recently a delegate to the Biennial of the General Federation of Women's Club, will deliver a short talk on the "History of Women's Clubs." All new members of the American Women's Club, including those who have made application for membership, are cordially invited to attend the reception.

Foreign medicines have won over Chinese treatment in the war refugee work, Dr. E. C. Yao told the Y's Men's Club of Shanghai tiffin yesterday at the Union Club. Dr. Yao reported that the choice was given in the voluntary medical work on the outskirts of the western front of either Chinese or foreign treatment. The foreign treatment was ignored at first but the death of five patients of the Chinese system brought the coolies to the foreign work. Members of the club were guests of Chang Nieh Yuen, adviser to the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce. Chang outlined the activities of the Shanghai Municipal Council in refugee work. The club is collecting clothing for the refugees. Articles may be sent to George Hoh, 120 Szechuen Road, or Mrs. T. K. Liu, 62 Kiangse Road, may be communicated with.

WAR ATROCITIES ARE COMMITTED NEAR SHANGHAI

Villages And Towns Devastated By Looting And Burning

That practically every town and village as well as farm house within a range twenty to thirty miles about Shanghai has either been looted or burned or both was the inevitable conclusion reached in Shanghai yesterday based upon reports brought into the city by a continuous string of refugees and by foreign observers coming into Shanghai from trips along the two railways.

The looting which began several weeks ago in the town of Huchow just south of Lake Taiho by a contingent of Chekiang troops returning from the fighting at Ishing, has been continued in recent days by the Kiangsu troops which have been advancing in the direction of Shanghai from the North. According to an account brought into Shanghai last Thursday night by Chinese attached to a mission station in the town of Nanziang, the looting and burning in that place started almost as soon as the Kiangsu troops arrived. Yesterday a foreigner made a trip to Nanziang and found that the entire town had been looted and that at least half of the city including the central business district had been burned. There are only about 4,000 people left in the entire place and they are women and children huddled together in the compound of the Southern Methodist Mission.

The town of Chenju located only five miles from Jessfield village on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway was also looted last week and early yesterday morning a disastrous fire put the finishing touches to the destruction of the place. The place was both looted and burned by Kiangsu soldiery, the latter taking place after the arrival in the village of General Chi Hsieh-yuan, the commander of the Kiangsu troops.

From the Shanghai-Nanking Railway east to the sea the countryside has the appearance of parts of Belgium and northern France after four years of the World War. Liuho which was fought over for so many weeks is almost entirely in ruins and a great deal of Woosung has also been looted and burned. No facts are available regarding the town of Paoshan below Woosung but the smaller country villages and farm houses in this area have all been looted and later burned, apparently for the purpose of hiding the crime. Neither is there any information available regarding the condition of the town of Kating located inland from Nanziang. Sungkiang to the south of Shanghai on the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway was also looted by the mixed troops of Kiangsu, Anhwei and Fukien operating under General Sun Chuanfang.

It is impossible of course to estimate the damage which has been done to this, the most prosperous and densely settled section of China, but it must be enormous and the results will be felt for a long time, especially during the coming winter.

One man who lives in a little village near Woosung but who operates a small oil shop in Woosung for one of the foreign oil companies in Shanghai said that the soldiers first visited his house and demanded $40. Then they went away and another gang came back and wanted $40 more. When it was not forthcoming they drove away the family stock of animals consisting of several goats and a pig and the flock of chickens and ducks. Then still later another group of soldiers came and looted everything on the premises and smashed in the doors and windows.

When residents of Quinsan observed the fire at Nanziang they sent their entire equipment of fire pumps, but when they arrived the soldiers took possession of them and used them to fill the boilers of railroad engines standing on the railroad siding.

The refugees in the compound of the Southern Methodist Mission station at Nanziang are being fed by the members of the mission but according to word brought back to Shanghai yesterday the rice supply is practically exhausted. The Rev. T. H. Tong connected with the Methodist Mission has charge of the refugee camp and is now trying to negotiate for 50 tons of rice to prevent a famine. The only place left standing in the town of Nanziang is the installation of the Standard Oil Company operated by a native agent.

Most of the loot which has been taken in the district about Shanghai has been brought to Shanghai for disposal to the pawn shops in this city. At Jessfield last Saturday an officer stopped a soldier carrying several bundles and when he seized the soldier by the arm he noticed something peculiar and rolling up the man's sleeve found his arm filled with gold and silver bracelets from his wrist to his shoulder. In addition to this he had on about six suits of clothese which he had also taken on his rounds.

JOHNNY DUNDEE, VETERAN FEATHER, GETS BAD BEATING

Jack Bernstein Heavily Punishes Former Champion

New York, Sept. 15.—After fifteen years in the ring and with more than 450 battles to his credit, Johnny Dundee tonight went down to a disastrous defeat at the hands of Jack Bernstein at the Queensboro Athletic Club.

Dundee was not disgraced, although he took one of the tastiest lickings of his long and honorable career. When the smoke of battle cleared away, Johnny sported a split right ear, a puffed and swollen face, and a body that was red from waistline to armpit. Bernstein left the ring unmarked.

The former feather weight and junoir lightweight champion was nearer a knockout than at any time in his life except that memorable night in Philadelphia when Willie Jackson knocked him out with the first punch of the fight.

Time after time Bernstein sent Johnny back on his heels with left hooks that invariably found their mark. Time after time Jack doubled up his ancient rival with vicious wallops to the stomach.

All Dundee seemed to have tonight was a heart, but what a heart! Never once did he waver over his task before him, and always when he was stung, fought back like an angry tiger and forced Jack to slow his attack.

In the thirteenth round, with all previous sessions to the credit of Bernstein, Johnny came out of his corner determined to turn the tide. Instead he took a terrific left hook to the chin that turned him around three times and he almost fell in his own corner.

Jack was after him like a hungry panther, but Johnny had wits enough left to cover up, and Jack lost his chance, although he drove Johnny all over the ring during the remainder of the round.

Up to this time Bernstein had a walkaway and the recovery of Johnny surprised Jack, for the fourteenth and fifteenth sessions were of the toe to toe variety, Johnny trying repeatedly to find Bernstein's button and failing as many times. He took an awful pasting for his efforts.

How Finland Made Her Wonderful Olympic Showing

One of the outstanding features of the 1924 Olympic Tests was the outstanding performance of the little State of Finland, a country which is little known, but which deserves a lot of publicity.

The amazing performances of Nurmi (probably the greatest runner the world has seen, excepting legendary heroes whose feats must be taken cum grano), as well as Ritola, have been commented upon by every sporting writer. Everyone knows that these wonderful Finns not merely won their races but won them with such ease as to lead one athlete to remark that "Finns are equipped with turbine dynamos in place of heart and lungs." Every athlete in Paris agreed that these men were, at their distances, unconquerable. Their stamina was the despair and admiration of all. They made light of gruelling tests which prostrated the world's best athletes. Sportsmen cannot fail to yield the heartiest tribute of admiration to a country whose total population is less than half that of New York, and who can show such a glorious record in the Olympic tests.

Captain Norrgren, of the Finnish Legation in Great Britain, states that Finland is a country peopled by athletes and physical culturists. Every Finn, almost without exception, takes a pride in cultivating the art of bodily fitness. The race is strong and sturdy, but in point of natural physique it is probably not more highly favored than a great many of the inhabitants of other countries. The difference is that little Finland is animated by a national desire to excel in sports and in the promotion of bodily fitness. The Finn keeps his ideal before him like a flame, which burns brilliantly at times, but which is never dimmed. Whether rich or poor, whether busy or not with other matters, he never allows his muscles to grow slack or his stamina to become impaired by loose and careless living. As Captain Norrgren puts it: "He may be termed pig-headed, if you like. His character is obstinate in the sense that he will not yield to difficulties. He fought relentlessly for freedom and gained it. He fights just as relentessly for health and strength, and, having gained it, he will not let it go.

Every Finn, from the age of seven, is trained in running and throwing stones, the principal national sports. Every village has its athletic club and gymnasium. The Finn lives in a "hard" climate, and while his diet is at times apt to be sparse, it is never of the muscle-softening and emasculating variety, of which so much is consumed here to the detriment of our budding manhood and womanhood. He knows not the bleached white bread or the food prepared with preservatives. His diet is rich in vitamines and Nature's bone and musclemaking qualities. He may not be fed to repletion as are some, but what he eats is good for his stamina and powers of resistance. He lives in an atmosphere of healthy competition, and he knows that to win honor for his village or his country he must be fit all the time. He knows, too, that it is far easier to keep fit than to undertake the labor of getting fit at spasmodic intervals—a lesson which many athletes are somewhat slow to learn.

Little Finland teaches us all a lesson.

Final Figures Show 1,420 Nominated For Election

532 Conservatives, 501 Laborites And 341 Liberals Will Race For Contest

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 19.—The final figures show that 1,414 candidates were nominated on Saturday, including 32 unopposed, making, with the previous nominations for Cambridge and London Universities, 1,420 candidates, comprising 532 Conservatives, 7 Constitutionalists, 341 Liberals, 501 Laborites, 9 Co-operatives, 8 Communists, 12 Independents, 7 Republicans, 1 Sinn Feiner, 1 Nationalist and 1 Prohibitionist. Twenty-three of the 228 three-cornered fights are in London.

A Christian Pacifist and a Liberal have been nominated for the University of Wales, making a total of 1,422 candidates.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 18.—The first election week of oratory shows that the Conservatives, whose hopes of victory are the highest, are vigorously attacking the Labor Government on patriotic grounds, Mr. Winston Churchill yesterday giving the slogan: "The Red Flag versus the Union Jack!" which is repeated, with variations, on Conservative platforms and in anti-Labor demonstrations in all parts of the country. Pictures of Russian Bolshevists carrying bags of British money are the most conspicuous feature of the innumerable Conservative electioneering posters.

Lord Birkenhead, who is very actively supporting Mr. Churchill as a Constitutionalist, improved on Mr. Churchill's phrase with "No money for murders!" while the Liberals are also eloquent as to the grave consequences of the Russian Treaty, in which, Sir John Simon declares, "the Labor Government has met its Waterloo."

Mr. Lloyd George told his hearers that they were being asked to give £30,000,000 to Russia, "where knives spring from the ground to tear the flesh of humanity."

This joint Conservative-Liberal onslaught on Labor has been productive of a reapprochment beteen the two traditionally opposed old parties unprecedented in British politics. In some cases Conservative and Liberal candidates shook hands publicly and Lord Birkenhead, in the course of a denunciation of the "disastrous period of Socialist Government," wished "from the bottom of my heart the success of that patriotic Englishman, Mr. Asquith, at Paisley."

On the other hand, the Minister Mr. Stephen Walsh denounced Mr. Asquith as "Pecksniff," while Mr. Snowden charged Mr. Lloyd George with playing a deep political game. He predicted that if the Conservatives were returned with a small majority the country would find itself governed by a party led by Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Churchill and Lord Birkenhead, with Mr. Asquith excluded. Mr. Snowden further described Mr. Churchill as "John the Baptist of another Liberal-Tory coalition."

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, at Barry, asked his opponents to make a "decent intellectual fight instead of sniffing like mangy dogs on a dungheap."

That the Liberals are selling their soul is the theme of the Labor platforms, where defence of the Russian Treaty and pride in the Government's achievements at home and abroad are the keynotes of the speakers.

Mr. Wheatley, the Minister of Health, described Labor's opponents' utterances on the subject of unemployment as "sheer impertinence" and declared that unemployment was a direct result of the captalist regime. He predicted that unemployment alone in a few years' time would lead to the return to Westminster of a Socialist Government pledged to establish a new social order as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Macdonald in an election address appeals for support of the Government, which, he declares, "will realise the dream of a co-operative commonwealth of service."

A novel feature of the election campaign has been broadcasting of speeches of the three leaders. Mr. Macdonald was very unfortunate in this respect, his oratorical methods at Glasgow causing much wireless distortion. Mr. Asquith at Paisley apparently kept closer to the microphone, but the heckling and interruptions by the audience marred the effect. Mr. Baldwin was the most successful because he spoke at the London Broadcasting Studio.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 18.—The nominations have been completed except for the English Combined Universities and the University of Wales.

Thirty-two were unopposed, comprising 16 Conservatives, 9 Laborites, 6 Liberals and 1 Nationalist.

They include, besides Mr. Stanley Baldwin (Conservative: Bewdley), the Speaker, Mr. J. H. Whitley (Liberal: Halifax); the Postmaster-General, Mr. Vernon Hartshorn (Labor: Ogmore); and Mr. T. P. O'Connor (Nationalist: Liverpool).

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 18—Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Rochdale today, said that if there were a setback to the Labor movement at this election the consequences would be disastrous to the working-class movement throughout the world. He predicted, however, that Labor would do better than at any previous election.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the course of a speech at Wakefield said that when their opponents boasted that Labor would be wiped out they were like little boys walking in a churchyard whistling to keep up their courage. He warned the Liberals that by combining with the Conservatives against the people's party they were encouraging class hatred.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 18.—Nomination day passed off pretty free from incident in bright, sunny weather. There was the usual crop of last minute surprises, mainly provided by the Laborites who put forward candidates where it had been expected that the fight would be between Conservatives and Liberals. Consequently, three-cornered fights, namely 225, will be more numerous than anticipated. Otherwise there will be Conservative versus Liberal in 51 constituencies, Conservative versus Labor in 247 constituencies, Liberal versus Labor in 54 constituencies, and 4 or more cornered fights in 3 constituencies.

Ten Sinn Feiners have been nominated for Ulster.

There are 39 women candidates, while no fewer than 17 Quakers are standing, of whom 13 are Laborites.

The most surprising withdrawal was that of the Irish Nationalist, Mr. Joseph Devlin, who had intended to put up against Sir Leslie Scott, the former Conservative Solicitor-General, for Liverpool. The latter consequently had a walk over.

Mr. Neveille Chamberlain at the last moment was faced with Liberal opposition in addition to Marquess Curzon's son-in-law, Mr. Oswald Mosley, Labor, who formerly sat for Harrow as a Conservative.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 18.—Speaking at Abergwynfi, Mr. MacDonald said that no pressure for the withdrawal of the Campbell prosecution had been exerted on or by him. Nothing was done in the matter that was not legitimate. He personally was against the withdrawal but the matter was left to the Attorney-General.

GOVERNMENT OF BERLIN CLOSER TO COALITION

To Include Nationalists In German Cabinet Is New Decision

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The bargaining between the Government and the various parties with a view to the formation of a coalition, which two days ago was apparently doomed to futility, has had a remarkable denouement in an announcement today that the Cabinet will be enlarged by the inclusion of four Nationalists.

It is expected that three Democratic Ministers will resign rather than co-operate with avowed Monarchists and opponents of the Dawes plan.

The Socialist Vorwaerts deplores the effect abroad of such a Government.

Paris Denies Having Sent Military Planes To Chang Tso-lin

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 18.—The Foreign Office has issued a statement denying the transportation to China of military aeroplanes for Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

The statement adds that a French firm delivered commercial type aeroplanes to China ordered by a commercial representative of the Manchurian Government a long time before the beginning of the present Chinese crisis.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 18.—The Temps states that no French airplane is shipped to China without it having been ascertained to be a commercial airplane by the aviation authorities.

MANY VILLAGES SWEPT AWAY BY GANGES FLOOD

Loss Of Life, Crop And Cattle Enormous; Snakes Attack Refugees

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, Oct. 19.—Reports from outlying districts show that many hundreds of villages were swept away by the recent Ganges and Jumna floods and that there were heavy loss of life and enormous crop and cattle losses. Thousands of persons took refuge in trees and were attacked by snakes. The floods had a wholesome effect in that they destroyed plague rats, but malaria and dengue fevers are rife as the waters subside. Relief measures are in full swing.

FRENCH POSITION IS UNASSAILABLE, ASSERTS HERRIOT

Relation With Germany Is Easier, He Says Before Congress

(Reuter's Service)

Boulogne, Oct. 19.—In a speech at the Radical-Socialist Party Congress here today, the Premier, M. Herriot, claimed that as a result of the Government's endeavors to end the isolation of France her position was now unassailable. He could discern no hostile prejudice against France among the the nations gathered at Geneva. Relations with Germany herself were easier as the first stage of the Franco-German economic negitiations showed.

The Republican spirit had won certain successes in Germany, M. Herriot declared, but France could not yet feel reassured. Germany still seemed to hesitate between two paths. The Nationalists were busy in military preparation among youths, while the associations of ex-soldiers remained in their relation to the Reichswehr. Certain fetes almost smacked of mobilisation manoeuvres. He hoped that the democratic spirit would finally prevail. France had at any rate sounded the call of peace. She was ready to resume relations with Russia.

The Premier placed financial reform in the forefront of the Government's home policy.

without plaintiff's authority eighty tons of copper nails, brass plates, tubing, babbit ingots, pig lead, seven reels of cable and other articles, the property of the plaintiff of a total estimated value of Tls. 40,000. Plaintiff further alleges that this property is stored in the defendants' godowns and that a godown warrant, or warrants have been issued by the defendant to one S. C. Young.

The complaint proceeds that though demand has been made by the plaintiff upon defendants for delivery of the goods, defendants have refused such delivery.

Consequently the plaintiff asks for an order for the delivery of the goods to it, for an interim injunction in the meantime restraining the defendants from parting with the property, for costs and other relief as may seem just.

Immediately upon the filing of this complaint, Mr. Teesdale, accompanied by Mr. M. Reader Harris, applied to Judge Milton D. Purdy in chambers for a temporary restraining order.

In making the application, Mr. Teesdale said during the last few days of the regime of Gen. Ho a large quantity of material from the docks was taken away and deposited in various parts of the settlement to the estimated value of Tls. 1,500,000. They were gradually locating the goods and part of it was found to be under the control or in the possession of the defendant company. He had been in communication with the defendant company, and they were perfectly willing to carry out any order the Court may make with regard to holding the property until it is adjudged who has the right to own it. In fact just as he left his office, the defendants' manager came in and told him the people who held the godown warrants for the material were in his office and were claiming immediate delivery, so that this application was now a very urgent one.

His Honor:—Who is Mr. Young?

Mr. Teesdale:—We have not really tracked him down yet, but I gather from information I have received that he and about four other Chinese have been instrumental in removing this material.

An order was made granting the application.

So much has appeared in the Shanghai newspapers regarding the troubles of the Kiangnan dockyards located alongside the Arsenal at Lunghwa in recent weeks that it is hardly necessary to review the matter again. The Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works is a Goverment concern and is the largest ship-building and repair works on the China coast. Up to the beginning of the war it was managed by Messrs. H. K. Kwong and K. N. Lew, two well known residents of Shanghai, who assisted by Mr. R. B. Mauchan have developed the dock to the point where during the course of the World War it was able to accept and execute a contract for the construction of four 10,000 ton cargo boats on behalf of the United States Shipping Board.

A few days after the beginning of the war in the Shanghai area, General Ho Feng-lin took possession of the dock and ousted the government directors, Messrs. Kwong and Lew and appointed in their places two of his own men, Messrs. Chao Chin-hua and P. Tsiang. The foreign staff at the Dock was also discharged with the exception of Mr. Mauchan who holds a contract with the Chinese Government.

In recent weeks when Generals Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin became hard up for funds to pay their hard-pressed troops, the new directors of the Dock began disposing of the stores of materials held in the godowns of the concern. Material alleged to be valued at Tls. 1,500,000 are said to have been removed from the premises, most of its under the personal direction of one or both of the new directors appointed by General Ho.

The case in the United States Court referred to in the foregoing is supposed to account for only part of the material. Other stocks, according to report yesterday, are said to be stored in godowns owned by American, British, German and Japanese concerns.

Don't Covet Your Neighbor's Wife; Be Ambitious and Get One

"Ambition has killed more men than bullets." Some wise men wrote that.

But ambition to have a wife never killed any man.

It was the ambition to have some other man's wife or more than one that did the trick.

That was the case of The Fool in "A Fool There Was."

He had a wife, a beautiful child and a home. He was happy and did not know it. Then a vampire hurled herself at him, and things began to happen.

He was not satisfied with one woman; he wanted another or thought he did.

So the Fool "his goods he spent" ....."Honor and faith and a sure intent." ....."And it wasn't the least what the lady meant." ....."But a fool must follow his natural bent."

Chiumenkow Retaken Gen. Wu Pei-fu Says

British submarine No. 133, but no damage was done anywhere.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 19.—A Fengtien aeroplane today appeared over Chinwangtao and dropped two bombs on the pier. It appears that the Fengtien troops are planning to threaten the transport-vessels. In the Shihmensai sector, some 600 Fengtien soldiers have been taken prisoners and disarmed by the Chihli troops.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chinwangtao, Oct. 19.—A fierce battle raged throughout yesterday on the Shanhaikwan front, Marshal Chang Tso-lin's forces making continuous attacks which were repulsed. Towards nightfall Marshal Chang Tso-lin's troops retreated, leaving a large number of killed and wounded, which have not been counted up to the present.

Marshal Wu Pei-fu's forces remained on the defensive at Chinmen, where the 14th and 24th Divisions have arrived in order to participate in the forthcoming enveloping movement, which is expected to have important results.

Reports reaching Shanhaikwan from Jahol state that General Feng Yu-hsiang's forces are making progress in the vicinity of Liangchienfeng, where a halfday's fighting resulted in the capture of 200 Fengtieners, the remainder retreating in the direction of Chienping.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 19.—The Chihli troops aboard the transport-vessels in Chinwangtao are in communication with the troops on land by telephone. It appears that they contemplate proceeding by these vessels to a point at which they are expected to land with a view to attacking the Fengtien forces in the rear.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 18.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin has issued an ordinance to all prefectures in Fengtien Province, prohibiting the exportation of cereals outside of the prefectures for fear that cereals of Fengtien should be exported to Chihli.

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Oct. 18.—Marshal Wu Pei-fu yesterday addressed an urgent telegram again to General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, requesting him immediately to remit to Peking military funds to the tune of $600,000. General Hsiao, in order to remit the required sum within the next three days, is now in negotiations with various quarters concerned.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 18.—The struggles for the positions of the highland to the north of Shanhaikwan, such as Chiaoshanssu and Erhlangmiao, which continued from last night to this morning, were the severest hitherto staged, the positions being the key to the defences of Shanhaikwan. In this battle, these positions were captured and re-captured two or three times by the two opposing troops. During the night, a large number of infantry, artillery and machine-gun detachments were constantly rushed up to the battlefields by the Headquarters of the Chihli troops. In the meantime, the Fengtien troops directed their bombardment at the station and streets of Shanhaikwan from the sea-coast, thereby obstructing the movements of the Chihli troops. In the sector of Chinwangtao too fighting continued from yesterday morning to early this morning.

The strongholds of Kiumenkou and Shihmensai still remain in the hands of the Fengtien troops. The fighting lines of the opposing combatants are gradually extending westward to the north-west of Chinwangtao. It is reported that the Chihli forces have recovered Santaokwan, one of the entrances of the Great Wall, some 7 miles to the north of Shanhaikwan.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 20.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin has at first announced not to mobilise the 7th Brigade at Fenghuangcheng (under the command of General Yu-lin) at the request of Japan in view of the necessity to maintain peace and order on the border but he has now decided to mobilise the 7th Brigade to proceed to Shanhaikwan sector. It is feared that the native mounted bandits and Korean malcontents will freely cause troubles on the border and the people will feel uneasy.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 19.—Yesterday at 1 p.m., the stronghold of Erhlangmiao was completely captured by the Fengtien troops, but Chiaoshanssu still remains in the hands of the Chihli forces.

To the latter place, Marshal Wu Pei-fu has despatched part of the 14th Chihli Division to strengthen the defences there.

The transportation by sea of three divisions of the Chihli troops has been completed. The greater part of these troops have been rushed up to all fighting fronts and the remainder still stays aboard the transport-vessels in Chinwangtao. The five Chihli men-of-war, which have so far been concentrated in Chinwangtao, are by turns constantly bombarding the Fengtien troops on the sea-coats.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 19.—In reply to the Note handed on the 13th instant to Dr. Wellington Koo, Minister for Foreign Affairs, by Mr. Yoshizawa, Japanese Minister, regarding the policy of the Japanese Government vis-a-vis the existing Chihli-Fengtien war, the Chinese Government today, through the Waichiaopu, forwarded a note to the Japanese Legation. The note makes no reference whateven to the question of Japan's special rights in Manchuria and Mongolia but expresses the Chinese Government's desire to the effect that inasmuch as orders will be given to the Government troops to protect Japanese residents and their commercial rights in the war-zone, the Japanese Government is requested to control those Japanese who attempt to join the Fengtien forces.

Khali Fatul Lays Foundation Stone Of London Mosque

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 19.—The foundation stone of the first London mosque was laid this afternoon at Southfields, Wandsworth, by Khali Fatul Masih, the head of the Ahmadiyya Islamic community, in the presence of the Japanese Ambassador and others.

The building will cost about £10,000, but for the present only the mirab or praying-place will be built.

Khali Fatul, performing the ceremony, expressed the hope that the spirit of toleration and large-heartedness which the mosque would create would help to establish peace, amity and good-will among men.

Chekiang Army's Disposal Delays Sun, He Declares

ers in Hangchow, naturally General Sun is interested in the matter of a neutral zone about Shanghai. In his conversation with THE CHINA PRESS representative, he stated that he would like to see a neutral zone of at least fifteen miles created about the borders of foreign settlements here.

According to General Sun's statement there are still about 6,000 troops belonging to the former commands of Generals Lu and Ho in this district which still remain to be disposed of. General Sun claims to have approximately 40,000 troops in the areas under his command and of these 10,000 are his own personal troops belonging to the Second Division.

Communication between Shanghai and Hangchow may now be had with only one change of cars due to a bridge between Sungkiang and Fengking being still under repair.

In commenting on the details of the settlement now under negotiation with the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce for the disposal of the defeated Chekiang troops, General Sun said that he had received up to noon yesterday $100,000 from the Chamber of Commerce and that this sum had been turned over immediately in paying off the troops. He stated that complete details regarding the paying of these troops is under his direct control.

It is not General Sun's present intention to send any troops from his territory to the North for the assistance of General Wu Pei-fu, since they are all now needed in preserving the peace in Chekiang and Fukien Provinces under General Sun's control.

General Sun when asked regarding future efforts to eliminate the opium and arms smuggling menaces about Shanghai, said that this district now being under the control of Kiangsu officials he naturally would have nothing to say on this question. He would of course co-operate with the Kiangsu officials in improving conditions here to the best of his ability.

When General Sun was asked regarding his triumphant march northward from Fukien Province, he exhibited a badly swollen foot as proof of the strenuousness of the overland traveling. General Sun marched along on foot with his troops and traveled at the rate of 20 miles a day steadily from the time his troops crossed the borders of Fukien into Chekiang Province. It was only at Sungkiang that his foot troubled him so much that he was forced to make the remainder of the trip in a sedan chair and the last part in a motor-boat. General Sun only spent three hours in Hangchow so anxious was he to get to Sungkiang to take personal charge of the assault by his troops on that place.

General Sun's Fukienese braves who made the forced march northward and who showed evidences on their arrival here of their rapid traveling, have all now been fitted out in new uniforms and shoes and bear evidence of considerable shopping in the Shanghai stores.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 19.—Brigadier-General C. D. Bruce in a letter to The Times with reference to the reported consent on the part of Sir Francis Aglen to secure the Peking Government by the issue of Treasury notes for $4,200,000 on Customs revenue earmarked for the German Boxer indemnity which has lapsed owing to the European War, contends that if two factions in China are mad enough to indulge in modern war, it is nobody else's business. The writer thinks that Sir Francis Aglen's action will be regarded by Marshal Chang Tso-lin as subsidising Marshal Wu Pei-fu with Customs (foreign) money, and thinks many Chinese will regard this use of the Maritime Customs revenue as foreign interference, which would be a fatal mistake.

Brigadier-General Bruce considers that if once a foreign Power is associated in Chinese minds with intervention, good-bye to any immediate future for that Power's trade in China.

"Imperial" Manganese Steel

Whether used for the lips of Dredger Buckets, the Bucket Chain Links, Pins or Bushes, means fewer stoppages due to breakage or rapid wear. As an example the following extract from a letter may be quoted: "Up to the time I left West Africa the three Bucket Dredgers (gold dredging)

did not break a pin

One Dredger has been at work neary two years, and the other two, 6 months. I think the wear of the Pins constitutes a record."

What would a record like that mean to you in money saved?

TRIBUTES PAID TO ANATOLE FRANCE

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 18.—World-wide tributes were paid at the funeral of Anatole France, which was attended by President Doumergue, Members of the Cabinet, members of the Academy and of the Diplomatic Corps.

A noteworthy occupant of the special enclosure was the former Premier M. Caillaux who was permitted to return to Paris, from where he had been exiled for alleged communication with the enemy in the Great War. A detective sat behind his chauffeur, while a taxi-cab followed the car full of police inspectors.

The British Government sent a letter of condolence on the death of Anatole France to the French Government.

Canton Casualties Total 2,000; Damage At Fifty Millions

known as yet, but according to investigations made by the police authorities here, it is estimated that some 2,000 people have been wounded and killed, about 1,500 houses destroyed by fire and the damage amounts to approximately $50,000,000.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Oct. 19.—The merchant volunteers, who have been routed to Hsitsun, have all deserted the place, and their whereabouts are unknown. It is reported that they have joined the people's volunteers, having an inclination to be enrolled into the troops under General Hu.

It is rumored that since the defeat of the merchant volunteers, internal troubles have occurred between the Kwangtung Provincial troops and the Yunnan mercenaries over their spheres of influence in the city. The discord is said to have assumed such a grave aspect that an incident of serious nature will be created at any moment.

In view of the fact that refugees are carrying into Shameen their bags and baggages without limit, the municipal authorities of the foreign settlement here have issued an ordinance, prohibiting the refugees, excepting those who have certificates by residents in Shameen, from removing their articles from the City of Canton to the settlement.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Oct. 20.—A detachment of 50 Indian Grenadiers with ammunition and machine-guns departed for Shameen last night as a precautionary measure.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Oct. 19.—As the Government has used emergency measures, those shops which have escaped conflagration and looting had resumed their business since this morning. But as the native bankers do not resume their business owing to their losses being enormous, the most of the shops are suffering from their monetary arrangements, especially the rice shops could not get funds to buy rice and the price of rice has risen remarkably. In any case, unless native bankers resume their business, the business depending on money market will not be able to have better days.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Oct. 19.—The Government is still searching and confiscating the arms of the merchant volunteers. The Civil Governor of Kuangtung has issued a notification ordering that the merchants who have joined the merchant volunteers should pay a fine of $100 per one male to be paid in within five days, by which notification the Government is trying to exterminate the volunteers. The merchant volunteers at Fatshan, Samshui and other places have been disarmed by the Government forces. It is also reported that there were lootings followed with the same.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Oct. 20.—There has been much comment in Hongkong regarding the British Communists' congratulatory telegram on Dr. Sun Yat-sen's so-called magnificent victory, in view of the general opinion that the burning of Canton City by soldiers was an unjustified act of cruelty and wantonness.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Oct. 19.—The fire was confined to portions of the western district and was extinguished within 24 hours. Less than a twentieth of the city was burned or looted. Many native banks and porcelain and pawn shops were destroyed, but only a few homes and practically no big companies. A conservative estimate puts the damage at $10,000,000.

General Wu Te-chen has replaced General Li Fuh-lin as Acting Mayor and Chief of Police.

The latter's troops suffered the most heavily in the fighting on Wednesday, but they are reported to have done most of the looting.

Refugees are still leaving Canton. The streets are quiet today and are almost free of soldiers.

General Chen Chiung-ming's troops are reported to be at Shektan, on this side of Sheklung. Distant artillery fire was heard in that direction yesterday.

The department stores have reopened.

Dollars Celebrate Fifty Years Of Married Life

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—A gang of sturdy lumber jacks were, some 50 years ago, trooping noisily along the street of a little lumber camp on the Coulonge River near Ottawa City, Canada, singing lustily, all unaware that their progress was marked by the eager eyes of a bevy of young women watching from the window of a house on their pathway. In the center of the group was a spare, well built figure, roughly dressed in high boots, corduroys and heavy mackinaw, a white handkerchief knotted around his neck.

"Now, he's the one I'd pick!" exclaimed the darkest and prettiest of the group of young women, pointing to the youth of the white handkerchief.

"Not him, surely," rejoined another, a blonde little lady with curls. "No. I like that one with the bright plaid mackinaw."

"Do you 'spose we'll ever get to meet them?" twittered a third.

WED IN SEPTEMBER

The pretty, dark brunette was Margaret Proudfoot, later Mrs. Robert Dollar, and the youth with the white kerchief around his neck none other than Robert Dollar, now known all over the world as a lumber man and the owner of great fleets of ships.

They met later, just how both Mr. and Mrs. Dollar have now forgotten, but they met and Captain Dollar, then "Boss" Dollar of the lumber camp, proposed and was accepted.

That was in the spring of 1874, just exactly 50 years ago next Thursday, September 11, which is the reason why Captain and Mrs. Robert Dollar are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary with a garden party at their beautiful home in San Rafael next Thursday.

The 50 golden years that have passed since the two young people "signed articles" in the little French lumber camp on the Coulonge River back in Canada have passed as if in a dream. Captain Dollar declared last evening as he told of early days. Before a cheerful grate fire, he sat, no longer the bonny Scotch youth who married his black-haired Margaret, but an imposing patriarchal figure with his snowy white hair and beard.

"NEVER A HITCH"

"We've had nary a wreck, nary a single catastrophe to threaten our voyage," he said. "Do you know why? H'um. Because I got the kind of a wife I did. They call me 'Captain.' But the real captain of this family is Mrs. Dollar. And we pull together. We've never had a hitch."

Once, just one, long ago, on a stormy night in the first 20 years, there came a wild typhoon from out of the blackness of the night, which threatened for a few minutes to do a bit of damage, admitted Captain Dollar.

"We pretty nearly had an argument," he said, reminiscently. "I was out late at some Masonic meeting. I didn't get in until two in the morning. Mrs. Dollar went and sat up for me. I don't know why she took in into her head to do so. Anyway, when I came in she said: 'Well, well! I've my opinion of a man who keeps his wife up until two in the morning!' And I said: 'Well, well! I've my opinion of a wife who stays up until her husband comes home!'

"And then we both laughed. I think Mrs. Dollar was really mad and I was too, but we both laughed anyway, and we saw how funny it was and we went to bed forgot it."

HAPPINESS RECIPE

But the Dollar recipe for happiness is "Work and Trust One Another."

Perhaps that is why Captain Robert Dollar, who is one of the foremost lumber magnates of the country, owner of great merchant fleets and known the world over for his business acumen, also points with pride to 50 golden years of married life.

MANCHESTER PLANS TO BE MEAT PORT

Modern Handling Facilities And Storage Of Cattle Are Inspected

Manchester, England, Sept. 17.—Representatives of the Australian meat producers and shippers on a tour of Britain visited this city today. They expressed surprise at the wonderful facilities at Trafford Park, where exists a storage chamber for the accommodation of a whole cargo of fruits, built in 1919 at a cost of £55,000, and in which not a single consignment has yet been stored.

The British resident representative of the Australian Meat Council in a speech here said that the Australian meat business was in very bad shape. He emphasised the great saving that could be accomplished by shipping direct to Manchester instead of Liverpool as in the past. The speaker asserted that the meat consumer in Britain paid a heavy price, owing to controlled distribution, and estimated the difference between the consumer's price for home and foreign meat consumed yearly in Britain, allowing for a reasonable butcher's profit and the price paid by the consumer, at £158,000,000, and said that half that margin represented imported meat. He also announced that the erection of a cold storage plant in Britain, with one store in London and another either in Liverpool or Manchester.

"If Australia is forced to compete with British enterprises," he said, "it would be because they are compelled to do so in the interests of an industry which is on the verge of starvation. Australia could not compete with South America in canned meats at recent contract prices, even if they received the meats gratis."

A representative of the Manchester cold storage interests and the Trafford Park estates emphasised advantages of Manchester as a meat port instead of Liverpool. He gave as an instance a specific cargo which would have saved £3,000 by shipment to Manchester where it would have been loaded on trucks direct from the ship and sent to different points of destination without expensive carting and barging charges. He also pointed out that while the British standard storage charge is 27½s per ton per month, the Manchester rate is 12s for the first week and 3½s weekly thereafter, including haulage from the docks.

TWO LINES ARE MERGED BY U. S. SHIPPING BOARD

Atlantic And Gulf Services Are Combined Under The American Pioneer Co.

The Barber Line service from Atlantic ports and the Tampa Interocean service from Gulf ports to the Far East and Dutch East Indies has been consolidated by the United States Shipping Board and hereafter will be operated solely by the Atlantic, Gulf & Oriental Steamship Company under the name of the "American Pioneer Line."

The ships to be used on the new consolidated line are the United States Shipping Board vessels formerly operated by the Barber Line and the Tampa Interocean Line on the same routes. The Barber Line and the Tampa Interocean Line will continue to operate their other services as heretofore.

The fleet withdrawn from the Barber and the Tampa Interocean Lines for use on the American Pioneer Line are as follows: Radnor, Dryden, Jadden, Victorious, Heffron, Patrick Henry, Eelbeck, Scottsburg, Independence, Stanley, Elkton, Archer, Eclipse, Ethan Allen, Hanover, Invincible, Liberator, Half Moon, Nile and West Mahomet. Ten of these vessels formerly were operated by the Tampa Interocean and 10 by the Barber Line.

Under the new management one steamer will be dispatched each month from North Atlantic ports to China and Japan, one steamer a month from North Atlantic ports to the Philippines and Dutch East Indies and one steamer a month from Gulf ports to the Far East.

Mr. Oakley Wood, former vice-president and general manager of the Barber Line, has been selected as president of the Atlantic, Gulf & Oriental Steamship Company.

BRITISH SEEK COTTON TRADE IN GERMANY

Increased Exports By French Mills Cause Britain To Ask New Treaty

Washington, Sept. 19.—British proposals for the negotiation of a commercial treaty with Germany along the lines of the proposed Franco-German agreement appear to be prompted by fear of the effect of the latter pact upon the British cotton goods trade, according to advices to the Commerce Department today from London.

Reporting to the department on the Lancashire cotton trade's interest on the proposed Franco-[illegible] treaty, Acting Commercial Attache Hugh D. Butler said that the agreement is of some concern to the finishing department of the British cotton trade. He explained that French goods have already been enjoying a decided advantage over British goods in the matter of entry into Germany.

"Under the Treaty of Versailles," Mr. Butler said, "Alsace-Lorraine goods have had free entrance into Germany for a limited period ended January 10, 1923, whereas British-made and other foreign articles and products have had to enter Germany through the usual channels, and recently have been severely restricted by the stringent application of German import licenses.

FRENCH GET ADVANTAGE

"This situation has given French finishing mills in Alsace-Lorraine a decided advantage. Their capacity for finishing cloth is far greater than their industry for the production of gray goods, consequently French purchases of British and other foreign gray cloths have steadily increased until during the first seven months of 1924 the British shipments were over ten times as large as in 1913. The import of British finished cloths into France has been substantially smaller this year than in the last pre-war year.

"A glance at the British exports to Germany reveals much the same situation, gray goods imports being more than double this year when compared with 1913. However, it is, in the sale of bleached, printed and dyed goods that British exports of cotton cloth have suffered under the present arrangements. Also the real value of the big increases in gray shipments to Germany is questionable on account of the post-war practice of many Manchester shippers to take advantage of cheaper finishing charges on the Continent, frequently reshipping their cloth after it has been finished in Continental mills to other world markets.

COMPARISON OF TRADE

"According to the 'Manchester Guardian,' the relative trade of France and Great Britain with Germany in finished cotton goods is brought out by the following figures: Total German imports of finished cotton goods in the year of 1922 were about 8,000 tons, of which Alsace-Lorraine imports accounted for 6,505 tons, and British goods 1,090 tons. During the first four months of 1924 German imports of finished cotton goods amounted to 3,162 tons, of which 2,287 tons are credited with being imported under the free entry privilege of Alsace-Lorraine, and the British figures are of such insignificance as not to have been given separate attention.

The principal world markets, he added, where British and German interests are most likely to clash, in the opinion of one of the most astute British observers, is in the Near East, Turkey and the Levant being important markets for German textiles before the war. Much of this trade has gone into the hands of Italian manufactures, and to lesser degree, American and Japanese shippers. From the point of view of the observer referred to, some concern is expressed lest German inroads into these markets in the next several years should push the Italians out into more severe competition with British merchants in other world markets.

FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION IS SET FOR JUNE

Seattle Meeting Specially Interests Japanese Business Men

The National Foreign Trade Convention to be held at Seattle in June, 1925, will no doubt be of particular interest to all business men of the Orient and it is expected that many will attend from Japan. The exact date has not been set as yet, but will very probably be during the first half of June.

At the last convention in Boston the Seattle delegates used as one of their strong arguments for bringing the convention to the Western port city in 1925 the fact that Seattle was the ideal place to attract a large number of representatives from the Orient —Americans, British, French, Japanese, Chinese, Philippines as well as others.

IS WELL LOCATED

There is no doubt that the holding of this important Convention in the American port nearest the Orient will mean that a very representative delegation of prominent Japanese interested in foreign trade will wish to attend in a body. Exporters Associations, Importers' Associations, Chambers of Commerce, Silk Associations, and other commercial bodies are thought to be already formulating plans for making the Japanese delegation to this important Convention really representative and forceful.

The meeting of this Convention at Seattle will mean that Far Eastern trade matters will be particularly featured. It has already been suggested that countries of the Far East be invited to maintain exhibits of their products, and industries in connection with the Convention.

June 1925 is still several months away but it is well known that commercial and Government bodies in Japan move slowly in matters of this kind. It is therefore necessary (says the Japan Advertiser) that they begin immediately to draw up plans looking toward the active participation in this Convention, which will deal with so many important questions in connection with that country's foreign trade. A proper demonstration at the Convention in keeping with the importance of Japan in foreign trade, means that a great deal of preparation must be made.

ALL SHOULD PARTICIPATE

Every foreign trader, exporter, importer, shipping man, banker should get his respective association and commercial organisation to back this movement and see that Japan, her products and industries, and her prominent representatives personally take a vital part in this convention in order to put Japan in a favorable light with respect to the other countries of the world which will be represented. It will mean much to that country especially at a time when she is doing so nobly in recovering from her great misfortune of September, 1923.

Hankow Trade

The British Chamber of Commerce in Hankow states in its weekly trade circular under date October 8:

Bar silver opened firm at 35⅛ and rising steadily closed the week at 35.11-16ths ready and forward. New York London cross rate at 446⅝ at the opening fluctuated during the week and closed steady at 445⅞ T. T. opening at 3-5⅝ rose to 3-5⅞d on the 6th instant and closed firm at 3-6¼d. 4 m-credits done at 3-7¼ on the 2nd instant remained at about that rate early on in the week but rising with the T. T. rate closed very firm at 3-8.5-16ths flat to China New Year. Chinese market rates: Shanghai Ts. 99.2 nominal. Local currency $70.2. Native interest 7 percent.

EXPORTS

There is fair amount of general enquiry from Home, but business is reduced almost to a stand still owing to local conditions and the recent advance in exchange.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods & Yarn:—The lack of credit facilities, and the shortage of ready money, have put a stop to almost all Import trade in this market. Exchange is rising steadily which would undoubtedly help matters if there was any demand.

BLACK TEA

Business lately has slackened off very considerably, few transactions of importance taking place during the past week.

As the quantity of sound tea is reduced so, teamen are advancing their prices quite regardless of the fact that such teas even though they are sound have very unattractive qualities both of leaf and cup.

An additional drawback to business has been the extremely rapid advance of exchange which has jumped 1½ during the week.

Turn The Arsenal Into A Manufacturing Plant!

AFTER the close of the World War many of the great arsenals both in the United States and Europe were turned into manufacturing plants for the productions of articles of peace. The great Remington arms plant in America is now turning out cutlery, hardware, and dozens of lines of merchandise useful in the home and on the farm. The DuPont powder works, said to be the largest in the world, is now producing chemicals and dyes, imitation leather, ivory, celluloid and materials of a similar kind which combine the same elements which formerly went into elements of human destruction.

Why not apply the same methods to the great Kiangnan Arsenal and Powder Plant here at Shanghai?

Owing to the secrecy which has been maintained regarding the plant little is known about its present equipment, but the last issue of the China Year Book states that it is equipped to manufacture field pieces and rifles in considerable quantities and that it is also provided with equipment for the manufacture of various grades of powder.

Surely it would not be difficult to transform this plant into a modern manufacturing establishment. The machinery could in all probability be used for other purposes such as an iron works or machine shop. Or it might be combined with the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works, also a Government concern, located in the same compound and the whole establishment converted into a great shipbuilding and dry-docks which could quite easily be made the equal of some of the great establishments in Japan. There is great need here for a dry-docking establishment which would accommodate the large ocean-going ships such as the President and Empress type boats which are calling here in ever-increasing numbers.

This is a point which the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce doubtless has in mind in case its efforts to have the Arsenal removed are successful. Although the plant is said to be in debt to the amount of Mex. $2,000,000, it should be possible to finance the enterprise for the works of peace and it should also be possible to induce foreign capital to invest in the new enterprise provided assurance is given regarding competent management. Probably the best feature of the idea for turning the Arsenal into a manufacturing plant is the element of labor. Thousands of laborers now employed in the production of arms could quite easily be trained to other purposes and as for buildings they are already there and ready to be used.

According to the telegram which General Chi Hsieh-yuan sent to the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce last week, the matter of abolishing the arsenal will finally have to be determined by the Central Government. In view of the General's well-known views on this subject expressed less than a year ago and reprinted in these columns last Saturday, he should be able to exert considerable influence upon the Government in inducing it to convert this plant into a works of peace.

News And Communiques

THERE is no particular reason why Reuter should have used over seventy words to tell us that the communiques issued by Mukden contain wild exaggerations and occasionally statements for which there is not the slightest foundation. It most certainly is not news, and the world at large has had such an intensive study of the art of communique writing and reading, that few of the general public are likely to be misled by the inaccuracies of either one side or the other. We in Shanghai, have, during the past few weeks, had plenty of experience in this connection, for the information which has been supplied us from time to time, by those interested in keeping the foreign public "well-informed" as to the progress of events, seem to have resorted at times to every expedient for the purpose of hiding the real facts as long as possible. Indeed it was a common complaint in the local press that only news of the Chekiang side was available, and that little or next to nothing was to be secured from the Kiangsu forces even when correspondents were sent to remain with them for the purpose of removing that disadvantage.

The art of communique writing may be said to be governed by three separate and distinct principles: to delay the giving of information to give the enemy as little information as possible, and to give the populoce none at all, except that which it is good for it to know. Consequently it is only natural that the communiques issued by one party to a war should restrain from a degree of frankness which is never practised even in times of peace. If we remember rightly the daily announcements made by Berlin during the Great War erred only on the side of truth when there were big victories to be announced. So also the Allies strived to minimise the effect of defeats in their announcements, not only for the purpose of hiding from enemy eyes the true worth of the damage done, but to preserve the morale of their own people. Thus, for instance, the damage done by Zeppelins over London was never fully described by the announcements of those in charge of communiques. Or again during the days of the submarine war, the statements which had to be made were calculated to give as little information to either friend or foe, and this was carried to such an extent that almost complete silence was preserved even when it was known that submarines had been effectively dealt with. The news, often then, was a long time getting into the newspapers.

This little fuss in China is not to be compared with what we have just been discussing, but the principles adopted by the communique writers are precisely the same. Thus, though we are informed that Mukden is mendacious, we are being treated to precisely the same sort of thing by Peking, of which we complained so bitterly during the great war. For instance the statements contained in one of Reuter's own telegrams printed in another column may be taken as an example. The government war vessels, we are informed, concentrated at Chinwangtao were on October 12 under instructions to proceed to Antung. The message is sent to us from Peking on October 19. The next piece of soul-stirring information is to the effect that Marshal Wu had made satisfactory arrangements with the South Manchurian Railway, the nature of which was not disclosed. No doubt our readers will feel much better after reading this. Then comes the description of the aeroplane raid on Fengtien. Eleven bombs were dropped, a water tank was destroyed, a boy wounded, and the rest of the missiles did not explode. And, finally, we learn that Marshal Wu went out early in the day with his full staff to direct operations. There is something touching in that statement, a picture of heroic devotion to duty. Not only did the Marshal go out early in the day to direct operations, which he should be directing at each and every one of the day's twenty-four hours, but his staff as well left while the dew was on the grass to perform their responsible functions. It is when such news as this comes to hand that foreigners are afforded true indicia of the terrors of war in China.

We must be forgiven if we poke a little fun at Reuters for giving us the warning they have. We have to publish communiques as they come to us, knowing that they are ex parte statements and as such likely to contain only that which the writers would have us know, realising that with the help of special correspondents which we have available, and relying upon the ordinary common sense of our readers that by comparison of all the reports collated, very few people are likely to be misled by the use of the suppressio veri or the suggestio falsi, which is half the art of communique writing.

Other Views Than Ours On The China War

CHINA IN REVOLT

(From The Brooklyn Eagle)

As the conflict in China extends to a wider front, the world again witnesses the three old irreconcilables of Chinese politics taking the field against each other. Marshal Chang Tso-lin, the war lord of Manchuria, a former bandit who became so powerful that, with the typical foresight and weakness of all Chinese governments, Peking entered into a deal with him, making him a general of the armies, is reported moving on his arch enemy, Wu Pei-fu, who drove him back from the Peking railroad two years ago. And while they again fall out, Dr. Sun Yat-sen is once more preparing to throw his forces into the breach. Dr. Sun generally strives to be on the winning side, a feature of his strategy which in no way binds him to support his ally once the common enemy is driven out.

The confused idea of Chinese civil war which muddles the minds of the Occidentals is due chiefly to the fact that the Chinese Empire has always been a conglomeration of nearly autonomous provinces, most of them ruled by warlike overlords. The Peking Emperor was accustomed to bargain with obstreperous satraps of the provinces and the hold held by him was chiefly religious and only weakly political. In China a man such as Chang is entitled to much respect, since banditry is of a higher status than affluence reached by plundering a civil office.

When the revolution overthrew the Emperor, the Chinese tried to borrow Western ideas, such as president, parliament and constitution. The country has never taken kindly to a highly centralized form of government. This has greatly aided such trouble makers as Sun and Chang. Ghang is accused of pro-Japanese sympathies and during the revolution of two years ago it was broadly hinted that Tokio was financing his campaign. Wu, on the other hand, stands forth as the 100 percent Chinaman of today. He opposed the Japanese in Shantung and is considered a Peking patriot. Dr. Sun Yat-sen claims priority over all, having been a leader in the revolution which ended the reign of the imperial family.

Meanwhile, outside the theater of operations, the farmers cultivate their silkworms, mulberry trees and rice, and life is as placidly Oriental as ever. The Chinaman, with his reverence for family and ancestors, finds little interest in who rules Peking. So long as his neigborhood is not disturbed, it is his philosophy that more is to be gained by working than by arguing and fighting. In this respect China has a lot to learn from Western civilisation, which has frequently found short cuts to ease and prosperity by battle.

LITTLE HSU AND HIS ASSOCIATES

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—From the 3rd of September last up to the 13th of this month, if I am not mistaken, war raged between the Kiangsu and Chekiang armies, quite close to Shanghai, so near in fact, that the booming of guns could be clearly heard in all parts of this city.

During the war and up to time of writing, refugees from the fighting areas and points of danger elsewhere have flocked into the Concessions and are still coming in thick, until it appears that there is no more space to accommodate them, and after the barriers are closed at about 6 p.m. hordes of poor countryfolk, men, women and children, together with their bag and baggage are barred out and left to roam about the streets in Chinese Shanghai territory, bordering the Concessions, until some charitable person or organisation can find temporary shelter for them. Of course, the Concessions are not meant for giving accommodation to unfortunate Chinese refugees of war and the Authorities naturally are compelled to admit only such numbers that they can handle, without endangering the safety of permanent residents, so those who have already got in and enjoying the hospitality of the Concessions should be more than thankful.

What misery and suffering this short war has caused to the Chinese inhabitants, round about these parts, and in Shanghai itself owing to the stoppage of works and factories and other business concerns, etc., the very near future will tell and I dread to think of it. Besides this, what must be the extent of loss already sustained, and to be suffered later, by the foreign and Chinese merchants here and abroad through the general dislocation of business, non-fulfilment of deliveries and contracts, and other business complications? This will run in to millions and millions of dollars and, no doubt, this is worrying the life out of the foreign merchants, who together with their governments have been compelled to watch with folded arms. for the sake of keeping strict neutrality.

Now, if the powers have thought it fit to maintain strict neutrality during this war, it stands to reason that their subjects are bound to keep neutral also and should any foreign subject be found guilty of aiding either belligerent, he is involving his country and committing a very grave offence, which should not be allowed to go unpunished. An instance of this offence has already been made by one man who claims Portuguese citizenship, and it will be interesting to know what will be done with him.

At the moment when hostilities ceased, on October 13, 1924, I believe, and when peace loomed in sight again to the delight of almost everybody, what happened? Little Hsu and his party of plotters were scheming within the Concessions and they tried to take command of the Chekiang troops left stranded and abandoned by Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin, to continue the struggle with Kiangsu, and these troops hemmed in within 5 miles of Shanghai. Fortunately, his plans were nipped in the bud, when he and his party of schemers motored in to the International Settlement, and were arrested at the Honan and Paoshan road barrier, directly after leaving their War Council Meeting, held in one of the Godowns of the S. N. Railway North station. We therefore have to thank the International Settlement police force for having averted a calamity which might have turned out to be of much greater dimensions than that which we have already witnessed during the last 40 odd days, for, I was informed that it was decided to rush the Concessions with 15,000 troops, should they be defeated by the Kiangsu forces.

Understanding that the Consular body has decided not to tolerate such persons as Little Hsu and his confederates within the Concessions, it is time that such evil characters be outlawed. These men have been caught red-handed with Hsu, planning to bring war and its horrors in our midst again and whether they be foreign or Chinese subjects, they should be expelled from these Settlements and treated without mercy, as an example for the many others, who have not yet been exposed. The Consular Body could easily order a joint investigation of the above-named culprits to find out who and what their occupations are so as to determine whether they are desirable citizens or not. This class of men are worse than common murderers, placing personal gain before everything else and are not fit to be admitted into decent society.

I have no leanings towards either Kiangsu or Chekiang and my motive in writing this letter is to draw the attention of the foreign and Chinese community, to the vagabonds in the Concessions, who every decent citizen should fight to have expelled for safety's sake.

Thanking you for granting me space in your valuable columns,

Yours Faithfully,
SUNG LUP KUNG.

A Call For Lightning Observers

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

If you should see a "ball of lightning," summon up all your sangfroid, watch its motions and peculiarities with great care and then, while the impression is fresh, write out all the details and send them to Professor W. J. Humphreys at the Weather Bureau, Washington. If you could only send him the lightning ball itself, no doubt that would be the cream of evidence!

However, Professor Humphreys is not one of those scientific skeptics who believe nothing except what has occurred, or been seen, in their own particular laboratories. On the contrary, he expressly says, "Most cases of ball lightning aren't, but some are; and we want to understand the cause and nature of this rare phenomenon." He also speaks of it as "the strangest of meteors."

I do not know whether Professor Humphreys himself ever saw a lightning ball; if not, then his statement that "some are" must be based on the observations of others in which, or in whom, he has confidence. But, if the phenomenon, though real, is so rare that even the best authorities on such subjects are seeking for elementary information about it, how can there exist any criterion for distinguishing between the cases that "are" and those that "aren't?"

Probably the reason for saying that ball lightning does sometimes occur is that something like aritficial examples of it have been produced. But it would be presumptuous to assume that laboratory experiments have in this matter laid down inflexible laws for nature's procedure, so that all cases of ball lightning which do not conform to the model, must be rejected as belonging to the class of the "aren'ts."

I have never seen a lightning ball, but I hope that if I ever do see one I shall have courage enough not to run away, and sufficient coolness to enable me to fill out a satisfactory bill of particulars on the points concerning which Professor Humphreys specially desires information, to wit:

"By whom seen; whether others also saw it; when (date) and where (geographic location); stage (beginning, middle, or close) of storm; indoors or out; if indoors, how it came in and how it departed; single or many; duration; color; size; shape; nature of outline (sharp or blurry); odor; fixed in position or moving; if moving, whether with or independent of wind; direction of motion (vertical, inclined or horizontal); velocity; kind of motion (smooth or jumpy); effects produced; also anything else that was observed in connection with it."

Anyone who should be able to fill out that whole program successfully, ought to be rewarded with a "Ph. D," or, better, with the much rarer "M. O." (Master Observer).

But I really think that Professor Humphreys's appeal deserves to be taken very seriously and I am glad to help spread it. I hope that he will succeed in gathering some (many cannot be expected) valuable observations. He has well indicated how to make them. He says he has just read a whole book about ball lightning, but that like Faust he is almost as wise as when he began. I have myself read many accounts of the phenomenon, and it is true that they are very deficient in scientific material, though some of them have a thrilling quality not inferior to that of a good ghost story.

Only those who have read some of these stories, which describe the rolling over the floor of a crinkling, flaming or wickedly glaring, ball of condensed lightning, which seems to be convulsed with an intention immediately to explode, and blow the terror-frozen onlookers into eternity, can form a competent conception of the probable difficulty of the task for whose performance, for the sake of science, future observers of such spectacles are invited to screw up their courage and sharpen their wits.

It may be added, as an inducement to banish fear, that, with the rarest exceptions, according to the books, these bombs of pure electricity wait until they have got out of an open door or window before blowing up.

The Considerate Hostess Has Topcoats To Spare For Her House Guests

"The young girls of today travel with the least possible luggage—and the hostess does the rest." The woman who thus spoke has a charming country home, two bachelor sons, a daughter or two, a comfortable income and a soul of hospitality that keeps her guest rooms filled from the first of June to the week that colleges and schools open in the autumn.

"They wouldn't think of bringing toothbrushes or toothpaste, soap or wash cloths, and usually don't bother with brushes or combs. They do bring their own rouge and powder for fear you won't provide the brand they prefer. The hostess of today provides a fresh toothbrush in a sealed package for every guest, and is ready to supply almost any accessory that a guest might wish.

"I send my maid to help the girls unpack or to see what is needed, and oftener than not I have provide bathrobe, negligee and pajamas. So we always keep a fresh supply on hand so that there may always be enough for unexpected guests.

"Raincoats, umbrellas, rubbers, topcoat such things—of course the girls never think of bringing. Nowadays every country house has to be supplied with quite a variety of wraps—men's overcoats and girls' coats—needed for motoring, boating and other summer pastimes." So spoke this hospitable woman whose house is always full of young fry.

One woman I know who hasn't so much money to spend for the comfort of her guests almost never discards a coat. When it is no longer needed by members of the family she sends it off to the cleaner, has it mended and then leaves it in the coat closet on the first floor. It is ready then for motor parties and boat parties.

There are some topcoats that just seem fitted for such a career of hospitality, coats that seem to invite owners of country houses to buy them to keep on hand for guests insufficiently clad. The sketch shows one of these ideal sport coats—one that may be worn on any and every sports occasion. It is of rough wool plaid in two shades of brown with a collar that may be turned up when needed or rolled down in warmer weather.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

THE HOUSEWIFE—HER PROVERB

"He who begins and does not finish loses his labor."

FLOWERS WE EAT

Few persons know that calendula—the pot marigold that has been such a well-liked winter cut flower of late years and has always been a favorite in old-fashioned gardens—has an important use as a flavoring for soup. In the old days when each housewife prided herself on her supply of many different flavorings for food, most of them of her own growing, it was a great favorite. Even now the flower buds of the pot marigold are sometimes pickled to make a substitute for capers and vinegar in which the leaves are soaked has been used as a substitute for tarragon.

Rose leaves and violet petals have long been candied for cakes and candies. It is possible to do this at home, by the way—just dip the petals in a syrup that has with two teaspoons of baking powder to make a dough that will roll. Fill a deep earthen baking dish with peeled and sliced peaches, sweetened to taste, cover with the crust, and bake. Serve with any preferred sauce.

reached the sugar degree, and dry them carefully.

Nasturtiums are used in sandwiches, both tender green leaves and flowers. And their seed pods, like the flower buds of calendula, are pickled to use instead of capers.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Once Overs

BY J. J. MUNDY

Parents, are you raising your children to believe that you can afford expenditures that you cannot afford?

Do you labor under the false impression that giving your children what the desire, whether or not you can make the outlay conveniently, is your duty as a loving parent?

Naturally your children's demands will increase unless you make an effort to check them.

Imbued with extravagant ideas which are bound to cause them much discomfort if not actual sorrow in future years, your duty as a parent should be plain; namely, to have a better understanding between you as what you can or you cannot afford in your position.

You fear that the acknowledgement that you cannot let them spend money as fast as they wish will affect their love for you.

Instead, a wholesome appreciation of your position should give a sympathetic understanding which should result in mutual help.

Your entire income should not go to the children at the expense of discomfort and inconvenience to their mother as well as yourself.

Put it up to them frankly and then all join hands together for the common good.

THE 342 manufacturing departments in the Studebaker works are practically equivalent to 342 factories in one. For each department plays a specialised part in the complete manufacture of units used in Studebaker motor cars.

Studebaker does not simply assemble cars from parts manufactured by various makers. Instead, virtually every vital part is manufactured in Studebaker's own factories. This ensures one standard of quality throughout the car. It also eliminates the profits of middlemen. Savings thus gained enable Studebaker to add numerous refinements without increasing prices. The policy of complete manufacture is an outgrowth of Studebaker's 72 years of manufacturing experience.

HELD AS "BRAINS" OF MAIL ROBBERIES.

WILLIAM F. FAHY. INTL.

William F. Fahy, "ace" of the U. S. Postal Inspectors in Chicago, and regarded as one of the Government's cleverest detectives, is under arrest there, charged with being the "master mind" in the sensational $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ill., in June, and of other huge mail robberies. The suspicion of his chiefs was aroused when he requested the Chicago Police Department to cease its investigation so that he could work unhampered. He is shown here examining one of the gas masks furnished mail clerks after poison gas was used in the Rondout robbery.

Both U. S. Parties Aim To Lure November Voters

Approximately 63,000,000 Americans are eligible to participate in the November election this year. Of this number 4,073,646, it is estimated, will be first voters who may decide the election for President.

At no other time in recent years has this first vote appeared as important as today. Republican leaders have planned a systematic campaign to capture this vote, admitting unless a majority casts its first ballots for the Republican candiate defeat may come to the party. To canvass this vote three distinct organisations will become active, beginning early in July and continuing their work until the eve of election. First and foremost there will be a College First Voters' League, which will be directed by a Central Chairman with committees in every college community. The second committee, and it may prove to be the most important, is that already formed for winning the votes of the women first voters, who will be more difficult to reach than the men. These committees will work in clubs, stores and offices. The third committee is intended to reach the workingmen in factories, offices and stores.

Indifference of the American voter, revolt against the Administration in certain States and the antagonism intensified by the political scandals are factors that must be overcome by the workers. What the Republican Party will do in the way of carrying education to first voters and older ones will be followed in the same degree by the Democrats, who are believed to be better organised this year than in recent campaigns. The Republican Party, in the eyes of Democrats, faces a hostile electorate, and the campaign therefore will be more far-reaching and personal than now appears necessary to the Democrats. In the opinion of the Democratic leaders, their appeal to the country will be easily carried provided the party emerges from the convention united and with a candidate who stands for traditional Democratic principles and is not ultra radical.

CULTIVATING THE FOREIGN BORN

As the politicians survey the country and begin to analyze the diverse elements they are startled to discover the great number of foreign born, many of them not yet instilled with Americanism. This foreign-born voting population always gives the party leaders concern, and both parties try to win the newcomer.

There will be committees this year to canvass the votes of naturalised citizen. Every State has a goodly quota of voters of foreign parentage. In many of the New England States the native-born population is diminishing rapidly, while the foreign-born increase in number as mills and farms call for laborers.

A survey of the percentage of foreign born, or those born of foreign parents, compared with the native born, is interesting at this time. The figures are based on the 1920 census. In Arizana, with a total population of 334,162, the total of foreign white stock is 140,304. Alabama has only 52,903 foreign white stock out of a population of 2,348,174, but more than 38 percent of the population are negroes. In Arkansas, with 27 percent of its population negro, there are 53,065 foreign white stock out of a total population of 1,752,204. California has 1,586,756 persons of foreign white stock in a population of 3,426,861.

The figures for New York are: Total population, 10,385,227, total foreign white, 6,503,761: New Jersey, total population, 3,155,900, total foreign white, 1,825,412; Connecticut, total population, 1,380,631, total foreign white, 909,526; Pennsylvania, total population, 8,720,017, total foreign white, 3,632,655; Illinois, total population, 6,485,280, total foreign white, 3,232,770.

Reparations Agent-General In Paris

Prince Of Wales Saves Money; Plans To Marry

(The following account was written by Mr. Hayden Church, a correspondent for the North American Newspaper Alliance. Mr. Church gives an excellent picture of the popular British Prince.)

London, Aug. 23.—The Prince of Wales, now sailing for America, is making and saving money so fast that if he keeps on he is likely to be the richest King of England.

Incidentally, he is going to marry.

"You can dismiss as rubbish," declared an important member of the prince's entourage, "the current report that his royal highness has determined to remain a bachelor permanently, and also those alleging supposed reasons why he will not or cannot marry. None of them has the slightest foundation.

"The prince does not feel at liberty to marry until he has completed his series of Dominion tours. But then he will do so—as soon as he finds his ideal consort. Meanwhile he derives a good deal of amusement from the continuous reports that this or that lady is his destined bride. He has kept a list of all his supposed consorts-to-be and it is now grown quite lengthy."

These highly interesting statements were made in the course of an interview given to me at York House, the London home of the Prince of Wales, by the member of his household above quoted, who asked that his name should not be mentioned. Application had been made to him for authoritative information regarding the details of the visit which the prince is about to pay to his Canadian ranch and his program during the brief stay which the all-conquering young ambassador of empire will make in the United States in order to witness the play for the international polo cup.

HAS AMERICAN SCRAPBOOK

It was curiously enough a scrapbook that brought up the much-canvassed subject of the prince's marriage. This scrapbook, which is one of the prince's most cherished souvenirs, is no ordinary one. About the size and weight of two family Bibles, it is made up entirely of articles and pictures from American newspapers describing the prince's first visit to the United States in 1919, of which it constitutes a complete record. It was compiled and presented to the prince by the Department of State at Washington, as the inscription in gilt letters on the sumptuous leather cover bears witness and there are few of his possessions, the writer was told, that the prince prizes more highly.

Glancing through its pages, in which every journal of any importance in the United States and Canada must be represented, I found one article after another in which the possibility of the prince's marrying an American girl was gravely discussed. I inquired what the prince himself thought of these articles and the suggestion made therein, and was told that they tickled him immensely, especially in view of the fact that a somewhat drastic change in the law of England would have to be made to enable the prince to marry an American girl or any other girl not of royal blood.

SAYS VISIT IS PRVATE

The member of the prince's staff interviewed was anxious that the private nature of his royal highness' flying visit to the United States should be emphasized.

"The prince is anxious that it should be realised in the United States that the short stay he will make in Long Island for the purpose of witnessing the international polo matches is merely incidental to his Canadian holiday, and that it will not be possible for him to make any public engagements," the official said. "America interests the prince very keenly and he is anxious to make an extended tour there whenever it becomes possible. He would have liked to fulfill his ambition really to see America next year, and possibly would have done so had it not been for the postponement of his visit to South Africa, which is now to take place in 1925. He could not, of course, have traveled extensively in the United States this year in any case, because of the presidential election.

"It was only because the prince suddenly realized that it would be possible for him to take in the polo matches on his way to Canada that he decided to alter his original plan of going direct to Calgary. Because his visit is an absolutely private one, he has virtually no plans, except for the trip to Washington.

"As has been announced, he will occupy the country home at Syosset, Long Island, of James Abercrombie Burden, the iron manufacturer, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Winthrop, the former of whom is president of the Piping Rock Club, will act as his hosts. The prince's stay will certainly not be of more than about 10 day's duration, and he will not be able to accept any public invitations, although these are now pouring in at the rate of about 50 a day. He will probably play a little polo while he is there, but he will not, as has been stated, take part in any of the practice games of the British team. He also hopes to get in a little golf, which is really his favorite pastime, hunting coming second in his estimation. At the conclusion of his visit, the prince will cross from Long Island to New London, Conn., and then will travel direct to Alberta by way of Montreal."

"The prince is not visiting his Canadian ranch because any particular detail of its management requires his attention," stated the official in reply to a question. "He is going there to get a real holiday, which he now needs rather badly. He has been in London practically continuously for a year, and he has had a very heavy summer.

MIXES WORK WITH PLAY

"Judging by what has been published in theAmerican press of late, one might imagine that the prince spent all his time in England falling off horses, and that he was crossing the Atlantic to fall off more horses. The fact is that while the world hears a lot about the prince's play, it hears comparatively little his work, and that work is very taxing. There is hardly a day in the prince's life when he is not called upon to receive a long line of visitors, including distinguished foreigners and representatives of the endless societies and organisations of which he is either president or patron. These interviews take up hours of the prince's time, but of course they are unmentioned in the newspapers.

"And scarcely a week passes without his royal highness having to take part in a round of important functions, each and every one of them demanding a carefully prepared speech on some more or less technical subject. One day he may be addressing the British Medical Society, the next the Institute of Civil Engineers, the day after that a meeting of archaeologists, financiers or philanthropists. Naturally, the ground work of many of his royal highness' speeches is prepared for him—nobody but a walking encyclopedia could possibly be acquainted with so great a variety of subjects as he has to tackle, but in every case, he put's the matter with which he is provided into his own language, and constant speechmaking involves a strain which even he feels in time.

"He has had a fairly strenuous program, it must be admitted, and it is not surprising if the prince is looking forward eagerly to his Canadian holiday. You will remember he declared when speaking at the recent Dominion day dinner in London, that Canada had always been 'a real tonic' to him."

Coolidge Hopes Ford Will Renew Interest In Muscle Shoals

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Oct. 18.—Replying to Mr. Henry Ford, who had sent a letter withdrawing his offer in connection with Muscle Shoals, where he proposed to build up an enormous hydro-electric enterprise, President Coolidge expressed the hope that if Congress thought it best to restore the property to private ownership, Mr. Ford would renew his interest in the project. Settlers have recently sold small parcels of almost valueless land in Muscle Shoals at enormous sums.
